Mrs. Bruce Ives Has Lost Three Husbands Tragically.

EACH MARRIAGE A HAPPY ONE

DEATH IN EVERY CASE UNEX-PECTED AND VIOLENT.

Bereft for the third time by the hand Bereft for the third time by the hand of death, and deprived, by the most fearful blows, of her husband, Mrs. Bruce Ives of Ogden is awaiting in Seattle the arrival of the body of her young husband, who lost his life last week in the icy waters near Alaska.

Fate seems to have hung over each of her mates a heavy hand, for this is the third time in the history of her life—not a long one—that she has known the deep tragedy of sudden death attacking the one she loved best.

a long one—that she has known the deep tragedy of sudden death attacking the one she loved best.

Not more than six years ago the first blow came, when her first husband. William H. Chisholm, was thrown from a buggy and instantly killed while driving with his little son.

Three years ago, when Mrs. Chisholm was wedded to Albert Foukes, none saw the shadow of a similar fate awaiting him, and yet in less than a year from the time of the marriage Mr. Poukes was the shadow of a similar fate awaiting. Once more fate has interposed, and in the drowning of Bruce Ives the woman is again the victim of its cruelty.

Each of the three marriages was apparently almost ideally happy. In each case the bereaved woman has not been near to minister to the loved one nor to witness the tragedy.

In every case the accidents seem to have been of a trifling nature, save for the fearful outcome. In the first no danger seemed apparent. The staid family horse, which had often been trusted with the feilidren, stumbled, and the end came. In the second a mere coupling of cars went wrong, and, as far as particulars can be learned, the last was due to the slipping of a gang plank.

WHO SHALL PAY FOR LIGHT? Question Agitates Council Committee on Improvements.

Light for the city sexton and park-keeper was the topic under discussion at the meeting last evening of the council committee on improvements. The matter was brought up by a bill from the Utah Light & Railway company for lighting the houses of the caretakers of the city cemetery and Liberty park. The city attorney submitted an opinion that under its franchise the company was obliged to furnish light free to all municipal buildings, and these two houses were among the number. Therefore the city ought not to pay for them, at least the offices which were in the houses and the greenhouses just outside. As to the rooms in the houses occupied privately by the families of the park keeper and sexton, the attorney was of the opinion that the city was under no obligation to pay those private bills.

Councilmen Black and E. H. Davis like the most calloused. In company with a pair of kindred spirits the just of kindred spirits the young man had been in the custom of nightly gathering in the room of a friend in one of the downtown hotels and indulging in a "gentleman's game" of draw poker.

Thrown out of their accustomed method of spending the evening by the sudden departure of the friend from town, the three disconsolately stood on a corner bemoaning their fortune and awaiting a car to take them southward to their homes. But it was late and there had been a blockade on the line, and cars were slow in coming. The group grew impatient and said things about street cars in general and this like in particular that would have

of the park keeper and sexton, the attorney was of the opinion that the city was under no obligation to pay these private bills.

Councilmen Black and E. H. Davis thought that inasmuch as the sexton and park keeper were devoting all ineit time night and day, Sundays and holidays, to their work, their electric light bills ought to be paid by the city. Councilman Martin had a different view.

"There is no more reason why the tax-payers should be called upon to pay for the lighting of the bedchambers of these two city employes than mine. I myself am called up at all hours of the day and night and Sunday upon municipal business, and yet I do not ask the city to foot my electric light bills. Before long it will be so, if things continue at the rate they have been going on for the last year, that the city will be asked to pay the grocery bills of its employes.

"The taxpayers are now paying for feeding and shoeing the horses of some of the men it is hiring. The city hires these men at a certain price, the men to furnish their own horses. I am a contractor, and do you suppose for a moment that if any of my men who I hire to haul dirt ask me to pay for shoeing to do so?"

Councilman Davis did not know that the city had been in the habit of paying for shoeing other people's horses. Councilman Davis 6id not know that the city had been in the habit of paying for shoeing other people's horses. Councilman Martin told him that the next time vouchers came in to be signed by the committee he would show Mr. Davis bills for shoeing the horses of city employes.

The bills were ordered not paid. The councilmen are now waiting to see whether or not the lighting company will charge separately for the current used privately by the sexton of the city cemetery and the caretaker at Liberty park.

The committees on municipal laws and finance decided to purchase the Errickson smoke consumer for the city jail, the price belng $200. The bids for lengthening the smokestack: were rejected, as they were deemed too high. The building inspector will do the work by day labor at an estimated cost of $80.

The committee on public improvements filed all the offers of watershed land under the color of hair into three kinds —red, light and dark. Grumbler takes red because he's 'way ahead of the game and has to give odds. Fil take light and Bill takes dark. Make it $5 a throw this time. Are you on?"

Entirely awaks to the possibilities of such a hazard the three hastened to stake their money. Eagerly they awaited the arrival of the next car. The conductor who took their fares wore a cap that fitted tightly down over his head to his ears. Not a hair on his head was visible.

The resourceful young man spoke.

"Take off your cap, will you, Bill. please?" he said, ingratiatingly. "We have got a bet on the color of your hair."

The committee on public improvements filed all the offers of watershed land until the council can meet with the mayor and decide if the city wants to buy any more land.
